

Happy BIRTHDAY

72 looks pretty great on you.

Recently, we celebrated not just another year, but a lifetime of stories, laughter, wisdom, and the kind of steady presence that makes every room feel warmer. Whether you're sharing a meal, cracking a perfectly timed joke, or simply flashing that unmistakable smile, you have a way of making everyday moments feel special.

Over the years, you've built a life rooted in connection — surrounded by people who care about you, know you well, and truly enjoy being part of your days. The consistency, relationships, and routines you've created together are a big part of what makes your world feel safe, joyful, and full.

At 72, you've mastered the art of enjoying the simple things: good food, a cold drink, familiar faces, and the comfort of being supported in the ways that help you thrive. There's something quietly powerful about that — the reminder that a good life is built through trust, care, and community.

Your staff love you for a reason. You bring humor, honesty, and heart into the home every day. You remind all of us that relationships matter, that presence matters, and that being known is one of the greatest gifts there is.

So today we raise a glass (or a fork) to you:

To your health.

To your laughter.

To your routines and rituals.

To the people who walk alongside you.

And to the many moments of joy still ahead.

You are deeply valued, well-loved, and celebrated exactly as you are. ❤️

Robert