

Sander House & the Hopscotch Museum

On Thursday, February 5th, 2026, Sander House attended the Hopscotch Immersive Art Museum in Portland.

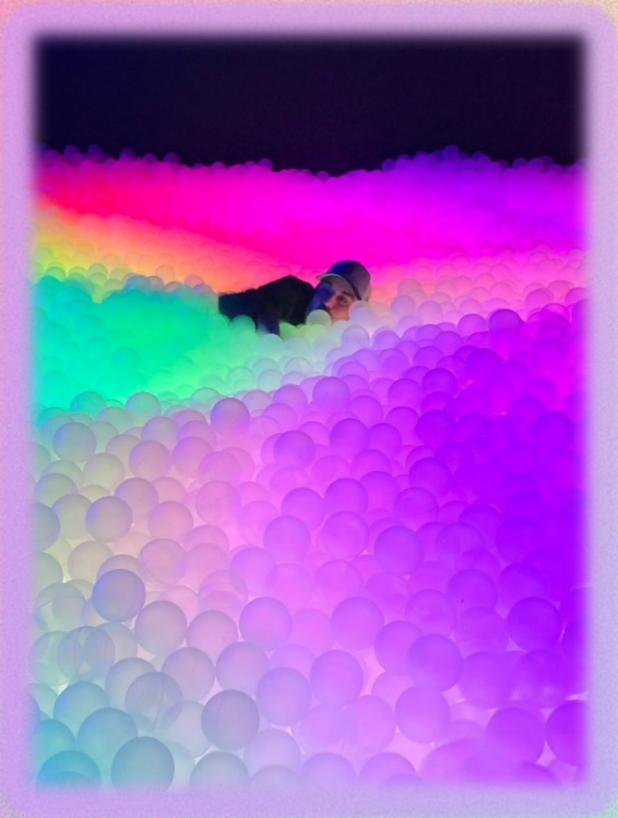

Hopscotch is an immersive and experiential brand that brings together artists in collaborative environments to create unique, impactful, and distinct shared experiences. This was an amazing opportunity for our residents to experience different styles of art firsthand that they could touch and learn about, and even participate in.

This museum trip felt like it was tailored to what our residents were interested in and what they would want to engage with. The facility was very equipped for ADA needs, and the staff was ready to assist at any time.

The clear favorite of the exhibits that were visited was the giant ball pit room.

Matt and Mike both found a painting that spoke to them and wanted a photo with to remember the occasion.

These color rooms offered a unique experience for our guys that they were very excited to try. This was especially fun as each person enjoyed seeing the effects of different colors on their clothes and skin.
